Dear Parent

Re: GCSE and A Level outcomes 2019

I am delighted to share the recent recognition of our GCSE and A Level results this week by the Sunday Times. In their 'Parent Power' league tables, the Times ranks the country's top state and independent secondary schools based on results of GCSE and A Level exams.

Nationally, The Blue Coat School has been listed as the 28th best attaining school in the country and more locally, is recognised as the 3rd best attaining school in the northwest. We are tremendously proud of not only the students' outcomes that directly led to this recognition, but also the enormous amount of talent and hard work that students and staff bring to day to day life at The Blue Coat School.

You can read more in our good news story here.

While this recognition focusses primarily on the students' academic outcomes, we know such high achievements are only sustained through the excellent mix of academic, personal and social development opportunities that my colleagues work so hard to provide.

Thank you for the support you consistently give to your children and to my colleagues in their efforts to give your children the very best Blue Coat experience we can. With all of the great support we see and feel in our community, it is exciting to think what outcomes your children will achieve in the coming years.

Yours sincerely
